

- Faculté des lettres et sciences humaines
- www.unine.ch/lettres

Citizenship and Mobility: Two Entangled Sides of a Segmented Order? (2SC2137)

Filières concernées	Nombre d'heures	Validation	Crédits ECTS
Pilier principal M ScS - migration et citoyenneté	Séminaire: 2 ph	Voir ci-dessous	5
Pilier principal M ScS - migration et citoyenneté (EuMIGS)	Séminaire: 2 ph	Voir ci-dessous	5
Pilier secondaire M ScS - migration et citoyenneté	Séminaire: 2 ph	Voir ci-dessous	5

ph=période hebdomadaire, pg=période globale, j=jour, dj=demi-jour, h=heure, min=minute

Période d'enseignement:

- Semestre Automne

Equipe enseignante

Gianni D'Amato

Assistant: Lisa Stalder

In collaboration with teaching staff from seven partner universities of the EuMIGS network

Contenu

This course is an international course, offered jointly by the EuMIGS partner universities, that consists of online lectures and interactive seminars. We will examine how different citizenships and citizenship constellations impact mobility and how the pursuit of mobility influences the propensity of different migrant groups to seek citizenship. In a liberalized globalized world, international mobility of labour is a major issue that has important implications for origin and destination countries, as well as for migrants themselves. However, not all individuals have equal rights to move and attain full inclusion at their desired place of residence. The recent COVID-19 pandemic has highlighted how European governments have selectively restricted mobility rights based on nationality, revealing a hierarchy of citizenship that extends globally. Therefore, we will discuss research thematically related to policies of (im)mobility both in the EU and on a global scale, while considering citizenship hierarchies in a segmented global order. This will encompass macro and policy analyses of drivers and consequences, as well as micro-perspectives that zoom in on individual and family decisions. We will also include analyses of different periods in distinct countries, addressing the nation-building process and, where applicable, the effects of decolonization, the creation of an international human rights regime, and the segmented transformation it has provoked regarding mobility and citizenship.

The dates are organised according to a schedule established among EUMIGS Universities:

06 November - Lecture 1: Citizenship policies and their implications on mobility patterns & Citizenship hierarchies
 13 November - Seminar 1
 20 November - Lecture 2: Micro and macro level drivers and consequences of mobility
 27 November - Seminar 2
 04 December - Lecture 3: International mobility, citizenship and human rights
 11 December - Lecture 4: Transformation of mobility and citizenship
 18 December - Seminar 3 and 4

Forme de l'évaluation

Mandatory and active participation in lectures and seminars, final written paper

Documentation

The texts that students need to read before the seminars will be uploaded on Moodle.

Pré-requis

Open to all students of the Master in social sciences, pilier migration et citoyenneté. Passive and active knowledge in English recommended.

Forme de l'enseignement

The course consists of 8 online lectures (2 speakers from 2 different universities per session) and 4 online seminars. During the seminars, students work in break-out rooms and discuss the lectures and readings in small groups composed of students of three different universities. The course will take place entirely in English. Students are asked to participate actively during the discussions of the lectures and during the seminars. The seminars will be based on texts that students need to read in advance and that are connected to the themes of the lectures.

- Faculté des lettres et sciences humaines
- www.unine.ch/lettres

Citizenship and Mobility: Two Entangled Sides of a Segmented Order? (2SC2137)

Objectifs d'apprentissage

Au terme de la formation l'étudiant-e doit être capable de :

- Discuss possible implications of different policy approaches
- Explain similarities and differences across Europe
- Analyse local and national responses to citizenship and mobility
- Compare accordingly policies and attitudes in different contexts
- Develop an understanding of the key-issues

Compétences transférables

- Carry out small research projects in international teams and individually
- Communicate and exchange your views with students of several European universities