Contenu

The "English Linguistics Workshop" aims to reinforce and gain further insight into the content covered in the "Introduction to English Linguistics" lecture (taught by Prof. Martin Hilpert), namely, an introduction to the scientific study of language. Students will have the opportunity to apply their knowledge by completing exercises, analyzing language datasets, and interpreting data.

We will explore key discoveries about the general properties of language. The workshop will cover the following modules (in line with the lecture):

- Fall semester: Theoretical Linguistics (3 modules): a. Morphology; b. Syntax; c. Semantics.
- Spring semester (5 modules): 1. Pragmatics; 2. Historical Linguistics; 3. Psycholinguistics; 4. Sociolinguistics (and Forensic Linguistics); 5. Language Acquisition.

Forme de l'évaluation

The workshop ("internal assessment / évaluation interne") entails five assignments (a–e). Details will be provided in the course syllabus and documents on Moodle.

[Both semesters]

- In-class participation (not graded): Students will be expected to attend every session, be active, ask questions, and contribute to the discussions.
- Online practice (not graded): Students will have the opportunity to complete preparatory activities at home before each session.

[Fall semester]

- 1 written exam (graded, 1–6): Students will be required to take a written exam at the end of the fall semester. The exercises will be similar to those practiced in class and at home. Students will have two weeks to complete this open-book exam at home. The written exam will cover all materials from Modules a–c and represent 50% of the final grade.

[Spring semester]

- 1 portfolio (graded, 1–6): Students will be required to complete a portfolio of written exercises at the end of the spring semester. The portfolio will consist of Question 1 (on either Module 1 or Module 2) and Question 2 (on either Module 4 or Modules 3 and 5). Each student will have selected which modules will appear in their portfolio. The exercises will be similar to those practiced in class and at home. Students will have ten days to complete this open-book portfolio at home. The portfolio will represent 20% of the final grade.
- 1 oral exam (graded, 1–6): Students will be required to take an oral exam at the end of the spring semester. Each student will prepare their answers (20 min.) with access to their written course materials (except computers), before presenting these answers (15 min.) to the instructor with no access to their written course materials. The exam will consist of Question 1 (on either Module 1 or Module 2) and Question 2 (on either Module 4 or Modules 3 and 5), including follow-up questions about theoretical aspects of the topics. Each student will be examined on the modules not selected for their portfolio. The exercises will be similar to those practiced in class and at home. The oral exam will represent 30% of the final grade.

Upon completion of both semesters, students will need to obtain a final average of 4.0 (or above) and pass every assignment to validate the course and obtain the credits.

N.B. If courses had to be taught online due to sanitary measures, the oral exam would take place on WebEx Meetings. The other assignments would remain unchanged.

Students must submit their own, original work. They may not engage in unauthorized collaboration or submit any work generated by an AI program (such as ChatGPT) as their own. If they include material generated by an AI program, it should be cited like any other reference material.

Modalités de rattrapage

A failing grade will lead to a written retake covering materials from the entire year. The exercises will be similar to those practiced throughout the semesters. Students will have two weeks to complete this open-book retake at home in July.

Documentation

All materials (course syllabus, slides, exercises, handouts, videos, readings) will be provided on Moodle. Some activities will require the use of online resources. Access to the Internet is therefore recommended.

Pré-requis

The course requires no prior knowledge of linguistics. English language skills are necessary.

Forme de l'enseignement

This is an activity-based workshop (theoretical concepts, methodology, exercises, discussions of theories and exercises). The course relies on active learning. It runs the entire academic year (both fall and spring semesters).

The course is worth 3 ECTS credits, which represents a total of 75–90 hours of work throughout the year. Students are encouraged to complete preparatory activities before coming to class each week. Regular attendance is necessary.

Objectifs d'apprentissage

Au terme de la formation l'étudiant-e doit être capable de :

- Explain major theories and concepts of core domains in linguistics, such as morphology, syntax, semantics, and pragmatics;
- Use relevant methods to carry out morphological, syntactic, semantic, and pragmatic analyses of linguistic datasets;
- Explain major theories, concepts, and methods from historical linguistics, sociolinguistics, psycholinguistics, and language acquisition;
- Apply your knowledge of theories and methods to start analyzing and interpreting linguistic data;
- Extract the most relevant pieces of information from a research article or a text in linguistics;
- Illustrate linguistic concepts using real-life data;
- Explain the main ideas of linguistics to a specialized or non-specialized audience.

Compétences transférables

- Discuss and synthesize complex theoretical issues;
- Carry out critical analyses;
- Communicate in spoken and written English in the academic context;
- Organise yourself and manage your time;
- Justify your analyses and convince the audience;
- Evaluate your own learning progress.
